King Charles is a man with extremely large hair. And glasses that reflect cats. These are the only real facts we can offer you about a man whose biography gives him polar bear parents. There is an eccentricity that you can also hear in his music. The man is a solo artist out of West London whom is quickly turning some heads with happy ears attached to them. Previously in the band 'Adventure Playground', King Charles is now on his own and has delivered a first single title, 'Time Of Eternity', via Mi7 Records. The song starts off fairly sweet and nice with acoustic guitars and his spoken word/singing barrage of lyrics style. Then it escalates with swells of energy and spirit, highlighted by some Animal Collective/My Girls-esque 'whoos' in a fiery red smoke background. This song is... shall we say splendiferous? And King Charles is a Midem Talent 2010 to contemplate.
